Brazenly insensitive

THE NEW YORK TIMES' editorial on the death of a young man in a car accident was a brazenly insensitive display of the newspaper's power and influence. The editorial was a clear attempt to manipulate the public's perception of the accident and the man involved. It was a blatant display of the newspaper's bias and prejudice against the man and his family.

"YES to Peace, NO to ZAMBOANGA CITY'S inclusion in the BANGSAMORO JURIDICAL ENTITY"

WE, a united Zamboangueno community coming from different cultural backgrounds, state that we are for peace—are honorable, just and loving peace in Mindanao. We are for the end of any and all armed hostilities.

HOWEVER, as one free people of different faiths and cultures, we do not favor the creation of a juridical entity based on religion or segregation. We manifested our unflinching opposition to the inclusion of Zamboanga City or any of its 96 barangays in the Bangsamoro Juridical Entity (BJE) and Bangsamoro Homeland under the Memorandum of Agreement in its entered into by and between the Government of the Republic of the Philippines (GRP) and the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) on August 12, 2008 in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

ZAMBOANGA CITY is a local government unit, duly chartered and is a highly urbanized city. To include the city or any part of it in the BJE would affect the city's territorial and political integrity cause its dismemberment and thereby prejudiced to the people of Zamboanga.

TWICE the majority of the residents of Zamboanga, both Muslims and Christians alike have resoundingly voted against the inclusion of the city in the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM) and the expanded ARMM. These can be attested by the results of the 1996 and 2001 plebiscites. The City Council of Zamboanga, the 10 barangay barangays and the 1000 section of the community have unanimously and unequivocally declared their unequivocal stand against the inclusion of Zamboanga City in the proposed BJE in every and separate resolutions.

Our Representatives have clearly and cogently disseminated this position in Congress.

WE fully support the initiatives being undertaken by our Mayor, the Honorable Gilda L. Lasingan and our Congressional Representatives Honorable G. Ching of District 1 and Eric Basco A. Fabon of District 2 to protect the integrity and sovereignty of Zamboanga City.

We are for peace but we are against the inclusion of Zamboanga City or any part of it in the Bangsamoro Juridical Entity.

The pact, which is the result of years of negotiations, marks a significant step towards lasting peace in the region.

The two sides agreed to the agreement after several rounds of talks. The pact is expected to be ratified by the Philippine Congress and the MILF's constituent assembly.

Hydro power plant would not affect Davao City water supply, claims firm

MANILA, Jan. 1 (AP) — A hydro power plant project in Davao City will not affect the city's water supply, according to a statement from the project's developer. The developer, who is a private company, has been working on the project for several years. The project involves the construction of a dam and a power plant. The dam will be built on a river that flows through the city. The power plant will generate electricity for the city. The developer claims that the project will not affect the city's water supply because the dam will be built on a river that is not used for drinking water. Interesting case of Google as an innovator

By Anthony C. Bonilla

One of the most interesting cases of innovation in the business world is Google. The company, which was founded in 1998, has become a global leader in the search engine market. Its revenue has grown from $1.5 billion in 2000 to over $100 billion in 2007. This growth has been driven by its innovative search engine, which has become the most popular search engine in the world. Google's success is a testament to its innovative spirit and its ability to disrupt the market.

Figure 1 is a 3D bar chart illustrating the distribution of the number of children per family (0 to 5) across different levels of education (1 to 5). The x-axis represents the number of children (0, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5). The y-axis represents the level of education (1, 2, 3, 4, 5). The z-axis represents the percentage of the population (0% to 100%). The chart shows that as the level of education increases, the percentage of families with 0 children increases, while the percentage of families with 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 children decreases.

1. The first step is to identify the key components of the system. This includes understanding the hardware, software, and data involved.

2. Next, we need to define the goals and objectives of the project. This will help us determine what we are trying to achieve and how we will measure success.

3. Once the goals are defined, we can begin to design the system. This involves creating a detailed plan that outlines the architecture, components, and data flow.

4. After the design is complete, we can start implementing the system. This involves writing code, configuring hardware, and testing the system to ensure it meets the requirements.

5. Finally, we need to deploy the system and monitor its performance. This involves installing the system on the target environment and tracking its usage and performance over time.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the cardiovascular and metabolic responses to a 1000-m swim. Ten subjects participated in the study. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The control group consisted of five subjects who did not participate in any training program. The training group consisted of five subjects who participated in a 12-week training program. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 min. The training program was designed to improve the cardiovascular and metabolic responses to a 1000-m swim. The subjects in the training group were tested at the beginning and end of the training program. The subjects in the control group were tested at the beginning and end of the study. The results of the study showed that the subjects in the training group had a significant improvement in their cardiovascular and metabolic responses to a 1000-m swim compared to the subjects in the control group. The subjects in the training group had a significant increase in their heart rate, stroke volume, and cardiac output during the swim. The subjects in the training group also had a significant decrease in their oxygen consumption and energy expenditure during the swim. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular and metabolic responses to a 1000-m swim.
